Learning Outcomes

✓ ABA Standard 302

The development and success of law students centers on improving student learning outcomes, using reliable performance data to outline strengths and weaknesses in competency. Generating a comprehensive view of student performance based on detailed metrics, including question type and subject matter, guides student self-evaluation in more frequent intervals.

Bar Passage Rates

✓ ABA Standard 316

The questions for law exams can be tagged with customizable, accreditation-specific categories that help law schools better monitor student success to improve bar passage rates. The advantage of a streamlined method for comparing student performance with required learning outcomes ensures law students can be fully prepared for the bar exam.

Formative & Summative Assessments

✓ ABA Standard 314

Providing law students with timely performance feedback after every assessment helps improve their self-evaluation, learning, and competency. The ability to add comments when scoring essays and rubrics-based assessments, and providing quantitative feedback from multiple choice questions, empowers students with the academic support needed to succeed.

Rubrics-Based Experiential Evaluations

✓ ABA Standard 304

Rubrics-based assessments are highly effective for scoring experiential evaluations and simulation courses. These fair and objective assessments are used to provide students the timely feedback necessary to promote self-evaluation, while also streamlining curricular mapping processes for law schools.

E-Proctoring for Distance Education

✓ ABA Standard 306

Reliable e-proctoring is a necessary solution for delivering secure, high-stakes assessments outside law classroom environments. The simple act of employing a device's camera and audio capabilities during an ExamSoft assessment effectively satisfies ABA accreditation requirements for distance learning courses.

Evaluate Program Effectiveness & Learning Outcomes

✓ ABA Standard 303

✓ ABA Standard 315

Quantitative data driven by student assessment outcomes provides the statistical information required for proper curricular review. The student assessment data generated with the help of customizable, accreditation-specific categories shows which areas of the curriculum are achieving the proper learning outcomes and how prepared law students are for the bar exam.

Feedback and Student Self-Evaluation

✓ ABA Standard 304

✓ ABA Standard 309

Providing law students with timely performance feedback after every assessment helps improve their self-evaluation, learning, and competency. The ability to add comments when scoring essays and rubrics-based assessments, and providing quantitative feedback from multiple choice questions, empowers students with the academic support needed to succeed.

“One of the things we do differently compared to most law schools is tag all our questions to categories ... we’re actually using ExamSoft as a mechanism to keep track of performance and measure students’ success in different areas.”
